SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

Cognitive / Academic Skills

Overall, the student's cognitive profile reflects a range of abilities, with observable strengths in certain areas and clear opportunities for targeted instructional support.

Language / Communication Skills

The child can communicate basic needs with support. They experience difficulty understanding instructions and expressing ideas. Structured language support, modeling, and repetition are recommended.

Motor Skills

Overall, the student's motor development reflects a combination of independent skills and areas that would benefit from continued guided practice.

Social Skills

Overall, the student's social development reflects both strengths in interaction and areas where continued support can enhance participation and relationships.

Emotional / Behavioral Skills

Overall, the student's emotional development reflects emerging self-regulation skills alongside areas that benefit from structured support.

Self-help / Adaptive Skills

Overall, the student's self-help skills reflect a balance of independence and areas where continued support can promote greater autonomy.

Classroom Participation

Overall, the student's classroom behavior reflects both participation strengths and areas where additional support can improve engagement and consistency.
